

Becoming More Independent

- Learn as much as you can about your health care needs. Ask your parent(s) about areas where you have questions.
 - Ask your medical provider to help you write an up-to-date record of your medical history. Include conditions, operations, medications and treatments (with dates, doctors and recommendations).
 - Learn to make and keep your medical appointments, refill prescriptions and order supplies.
 - With your parent(s), begin to look for adult health care providers.
 - If you have an Individualized Education Plan (IEP) or 504 Plan at school, we encourage you to attend the meetings and express your goals. Keep a copy of the plan that is developed and make sure that it is being followed.
 - Explore volunteer and work activities. Begin to think about possible career interests.
- Identify and attend support groups if you are interested.
 - If you plan to enroll in a technical school or college, think about resources you will need such as transportation, accommodations and financial aid.
 - Find and participate in social, recreation and leisure activities.
 - Discuss with your parents your daily living situation and the possibility of living independently, if this is in your future.
 - Continue to gain knowledge and ability of self-help skills for independence and additional skills related to your health care needs.
 - At age 18, males must register for the Selective Service.

Transition to Adulthood for Youth and Young Adults with Special Health Care Needs

"Transition is a process, not an event."

--from the National Center for Youth with Disabilities

You have experienced many transitions, large and small, over the years. Transitions involve changes, adding new expectations and responsibilities, finding new resources, and letting go of others.

If you are twelve or older, you will need to start thinking about moving into new programs and working with new agencies and providers.

We hope the information we have provided will help you as you plan for your future.

Our future exists in the hopes of our children . . .
